McCOOK GETS NEW SUP'T

E. E. Young Goes to Sheridan and E. S. Koller Comes to McCook.

MANY CHANGES IN DIVISION

Rumors of These Changes Have Been Current in McCook all Week and the End Not Yet.

Bulletins have been issued by the Burlington management appointing Trainmaster Ed. Flynn of Omaha, assistant superintendent of the Lincoln division, vice E. S. Koller, promoted, and making Fred Bolshaw, night yardmaster at Lincoln, general yardmaster at Lincoln vice Grant Hobson, promoted. It is understood that C. O. Harris, yardmaster at Hastings, will take the place of night yardmaster at Lincoln.

It is understood that other bulletins will soon be issued making E. S. Koller superintendent of the McCook division of the Burlington, making Ed. Young, now at McCook, superintendent of the Burlington at Sheridan, Wyoming, transferring W. E. Painter, trainmaster at Denver, to the position of trainmaster at Omaha, and making Grant Hobson trainmaster at Denver.

Every man named above is well known in Lincoln. Mr. Painter spent years in the Burlington service in this city. Ed. Young was trainmaster in Lincoln before going to McCook. Ed. Flynn is an old conductor who did service on the Lincoln division for a number of years. Hobson and Koller are both Lincoln men and have been for a number of years.

These changes have caused no end of gossip in Burlington circles and it is said that they have been known here for several days.—Lincoln Journal.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

The following new books have been received during the week: "Things a Boy Should Know About Electricity" and "Questions and Answers About Electrical Operations." These books have been purchased to meet a demand for such work. This is an age of the development of electricity, and the study of electrical power is of supreme interest and importance to many of our readers. It is the purpose of the library to meet the needs of the men and boys who are seeking information upon the subject, and to that end several more up-to-date volumes have been ordered and will soon be on the shelves. It is a noteworthy fact that all the literature we have concerning this branch of science is much read.

Sara Cone Bryant's "How to Tell Stories to Children" is another new book which will interest all who have charge of children and mothers as well as teachers will find the book helpful.

There are two new books of fiction by Anna Fuller: "A Venetian June" and "A Literary Courtship." The author does not attempt a "problem novel," but does something far better in giving us two entertaining stories without leaving unsolved problems.

The first effect of "A Venetian June" is to arouse in the reader an earnest desire to sojourn for a time in the dreamlike city of the gondola. At the end the book is closed with a feeling of wonderful familiarity with Venetian life and scenes. This the author brings about, not by means of description, which she does not attempt, but by taking the reader along with her, making him see the things she has seen, and feel the things she has felt. Next best to going to Venice, is to read "A Venetian June," to see San Marco, The Doges Palace and the Campanile, through Miss Fuller's eyes, and to witness the Festa on the Garde Canal with her.

"A Literary Courtship" begins with a discussion in a New York young men's club, of the proposition that a piece of fiction is more sure of success if published over a man's name than over that of a woman. One young man, to prove the negative, writes a story and signs himself Lillian Leslie Lamb, which name he chooses for its euphony. The story soon moves to Colorado Springs, and a very entertaining love story develops.

Both books abound in bright conversations, and both are illustrated by exquisite little photo-engravings; those of Colorado Springs being so familiar to us that we at once recognize them as the well-known by-ways of the tourist.
